

Name: _____

Hanging Together: Aesop's Fable

Let us enjoy reading this one of Aesop's Fables of Hanging Together .

The cranes were eating grain from his field, so the farmer set a trap and caught several of them.

Among them was a stork.

"You can see I don't belong here," said the stork. "I'm a law - abiding bird. Please let me go."

You may well be what you claim to be," said the farmer. "But I caught you along with these robbers, so you will have to hang with them."

1. What animals are in this fable?
2. Who were the "villians" in this fable?
3. What can you learn from this fable?